Terry Germany is a partner at Anderson Crawley & Burke. His practice focuses on representing employers and insurance carriers in workers' compensation matters.

Terry has decades of experience handling workers' compensation claims from initial filing through resolution, including contested hearings and appeals. He is also a frequent participant in seminars and client-focused educational programs addressing developments in workers' compensation law.

Terry's long-standing involvement in the workers' compensation industry provides him with a practical understanding of claims administration, regulatory compliance, and litigation strategy. He works closely with employers, carriers, and claims professionals to address issues efficiently and to achieve resolutions that balance legal, financial, and operational considerations.
