Brad Shaw is a partner at Anderson Crawley & Burke. His practice focuses on defending employers and carriers in workers' compensation matters.

Brad represents clients before the Mississippi Workers' Compensation Commission and in related proceedings, handling claims from initial investigation through resolution. He is experienced in managing contested claims, developing effective litigation strategies, and advising clients on issues involving compensability, benefits, and claim management.

As part of the firm's workers' compensation practice, Brad works closely with employers, carriers, and claims professionals to provide practical, results-oriented representation. He brings a disciplined and analytical approach to his work, informed by his background in appellate practice and his experience clerking for the Mississippi Supreme Court.
